FATAL PRESENTMENTS.

'Tis the sunset of life teaches mystical lore,
And coming events casts their shadows before.
Lochiel's Warning.

A private of the name of Mackay, a man of the most reckless, daring, and eccentric character, used to be the delight of the bivouacs of the 42d, during the Peninsula War. He had a great deal of that coarse but effective wit and drollery, which never fail to call forth a peal of inextinguishable laughter; he abounded in anecdote and stories, which he told with a remarkable degree of naivette and humour; and often did he beguile the watches of the night, as poor Allen did Mungo Park. "by singing the songs of our dear native land.'—The moment Mackay made his appearance, hunger and thirst and fatigue were forgotten; the soldiers clustered around him like a parcel of school boys eager to witness a cock-fight, and seating themselves around the watch-fires thought only of listening to the joke, the tale or the song.—Even some of the officers did not disdain to mingle in these parties, and to acknowledge the powerful fascination which hung on the lips of this unlettered soldier. Nor was humour, mirth and song, confined to the march and the camp; in the thickest of the enemy's fire he was the same person as in the bivouac. 'Never,' said the officer who communicated to me these particulars, 'never shall I forget the impression made upon my mind by hearing Mackay's full and deep-toned voice pealing forth 'Scots wha hae wi' Wallace bled,' under the destructive diagonal fire from the enemy's artillery on the heights above the village of St. Aoes. A soldier only knows the effect of such an incident at such a moment! Yet this singular man was seized with one of those fatal presentments of which I have been speculating. On the eve of the battle of Tolouse, he suddenly became thoughtful and silent. His previous character rendered this change more apparent, and his comrades crowded round him to inquire the reason, being at first inclined to gibe him with what they called his 'methodist face,' but on observing his dejected look, the wild and unearthly expression of his eye, and the determined obstinacy with which he resisted all solicitation to join their party, as usual, they stared at each other with astonishment, and ceased to annoy him. It was, moreover, his turn to go on duty to the outpost, and he soon left them.

On his way to his post, he met a young officer who had shown him kindness, and whose life he had been instrumental in saving. 'Ha! Mackay!' said the officer, is it you? Bless me how ill you look, what is the matter with you: are you unwell! Stay, I will go to the Colonel; and request him to allow some one else to take your duty.'—'I thank you kindly, Mr. M. said Mackay, respectfully saluting the officer. 'I am not unwell, and had rather go myself. But I have a favor to ask of you; you have been always kind, very kind to me, and I am sure you will not refuse it.' 'What is it? Speak it out at once,' said Mr. M. 'It is borne upon my mind that I shall fall tomorrow' rejoined Mackay; 'here are ten dollars will you take charge of them, and send them to my Mother? You know where she resides; and—and, if it were not too much trouble,' he added, his voice faultering, 'you might tell her, her son never ceased, till his last hour, to implore the blessing of Heaven on her aged head, or to reproach himself with having disobed, and left her solitary and destitute;' the tears now flowed down his weather-beaten cheeks. Mr. M. was deeply affected, and taking the money in silence, broke away from Mackay, in order to conceal his emotion. Mr. M. returned to his quarters, oppressed with the melancholy feelings which this strange scene had occasioned; but anxious at the same time to persuade himself that it was a mere hallucination of fancy, and that the poor fellow's mind was touched. On the succeeding day, however, when the remains of the regiment was mustered, after the battle, which had cost so many valuable lives, Mackay was missing, but the tears of his surviving comrades sufficiently indicated that his presentment had been fulfilled. He had fallen late in the action, beside one of the redoubts, pierced with more than twenty bullets.

It is remarkable that some families are favored with the peculiar privilege of longevity: while others soon ripen and prematurely decay. Those whose minds and bodies evolve slowly, are often longer lived than those who astonish us by an early vigor and energetic spirit. Early and astonishing acquisition of very young men, in different arts and sciences, seldom lead to acknowledged excellence in more advanced age. Sanguine temperaments are said to be generally longer lived than the bilious or melancholic; but this leans upon a doubtful theory. Very tall, or very short people, seldom, it is said, reach to a great age: but a person rather short than tall, rather thin than fat, muscular, firm, and with a full chest, has apparently the fairest claim to longevity. An active life with little uneasiness, a dry, free air, early hours, a mind regularly engaged, but not exhausted, a cheerful disposition, frequent changes from country to town, a diet, regular rather in time than in quantity, with moderate passions, and a temperate use of the good things of life, chiefly contribute to an extended, healthy old age.

State Legislature.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Thursday, Dec. 1.

Samuel P. Ashe, one of the members from Cumberland, appeared and was qualified.

Saturday, Dec. 3.

On motion of Mr. Edwards,

Resolved, That the committee on the Judiciary be instructed to enquire into the propriety of so amending the laws of the State, prescribing the duties of Sheriffs, as to enable the County Trustees and wardens of the Poor for the respective counties in the State to proceed by citation against the securities as well as the Sheriffs who may fail to pay over and account for as by law required, to the Trustees, &c. as aforesaid, such monies as the Sheriffs of the respective counties in the State may collect for county uses and the support of the Poor, to the intent that judgment may be obtained against such defaulting Sheriff and his securities, without having to resort to the more tedious process by writ;—and that they report by bill or otherwise.

AT last November Court, a BAY HORSE, the property of the subscriber, was taken from Pittsborough, by a Mr. Womble through mistake, I presume, he thinking him to be his own horse. Mr. Womble, rode him to his residence, (Deep River, Chatham county, N. C.) during which time it seems he was unable to discover his error—he still supposing him to be his horse—let him loose, thinking he would continue about his plantation, but has never since been heard of.—He is a horse of ordinary size, and trots tolerably hard, his hind feet are white, extending ten or twelve inches above the hoof; his ears are remarkably small. There are no other particular marks remembered. Any information respecting him will be thankfully received and liberally rewarded by the subscriber, living in Orange county, N. Gun Powder.

Rogers' Orange Gun Powder of N. Y.

THIS Article, acknowledged to be superior, wherever it is known, is manufactured on new and improved principles, as conspicuously appears from an Orange stain thrown out on its ignition, a peculiarity possessed by no other Powder, strongly indicating the absence of all Alkalis, and rendering it well adapted to resist the effects of a salt or humid atmosphere.

It is warranted to possess the greatest degree of strength and quickness, and to contain only about one fourth of the quantity of residuum, or incombustible matter, which is found in the best English Powder.

It may be had by the quantity, single keg, or at retail, from

J. & S. BIRDSALL, Agents.
Fayetteville.

Experiments having been made of this Powder by one of the first Chemists and Engineers in this country, who found it to possess all the qualities above described, and whose certificate is in the hands of the Agents—Purchasers not satisfied after making trial of the Powder will have their money returned with the expense of transportation.

POETRY.

LINES,

Written by the Rev. Charles Wolfe, author of "The Burial of Sir John Moore."

Oh, my love has an eye of the softest blue,
Yet it was not that, that won me;
But a little bright drop from the soul was there,
'Tis that, that has undone me.

I might have passed that lovely cheek,
Nor perchance my heart have left me;
But the sensitive blush that came trembling there,
Of my heart it forever bereft me.

I might have forgotten, that red, red lip,
Yet, how from the thought to sever?
But there was a smile from the sunshine within,
And that smile I'll remember forever.

Think not 'tis nothing but lifeless clay,
The elegant form that haunts me;
'Tis the gracefully delicate mind that moves,
In every step that enchants me.

Let me not hear the nightingale sing,
Though I once in its notes delighted;
The feeling and mind that comes whispering forth,
Has left me no music beside it.

Who could blame, had I loved that face,
E're my eye could twice explore her;
Yet it is for the fairy intelligence there,
And her warm, warm heart, I adore her.

Hillsborough Female Seminary.

THE First Session of this Institution closed on the 17th ult, at which time an approved Examination of the pupils was sustained in the presence of the School Committee. the exercises of this Seminary will be resumed on Thursday the 12th of January next. Competent Instructors will be in readiness, at that time to meet the wishes of those Parents and Guardians who may commit their Children to our care, with a view to their instruction, in either the useful or ornamental branches of Female Education.—The Superintendant, deeply impressed with the importance of rightly training those who are now the daughters, but are shortly to be the wives and mothers of the community, pledges himself, as before, to exercise a parental watchfulness over his pupils, and to give such direction to the instructions of the Seminary, as shall adapt them to the eternal as well as temporal interests of those committed to his care.

Every thing taught shall be taught thoroughly and with a view to practical life. And although the lighter gratifications of female education, usually called "accomplishments" shall be attended to in their proper place and measure, yet the chief aim of the Instructor shall be to fit their pupils for usefulness, by inculcating, both by precept and example, moderation, forbearance, good temper, self-control and the morality of the Gospel.

To Parents and Guardians at a distance, who may commend their children to his attention, the Superintendant engages to provide them with board, in families convenient to the Academy, and where all due attention will be paid to their morals, their manners, and their comfort.

Terms of Tuition at the usual rates. Board can be obtained in the most respectable families at $10 per month, including wood, washing, candles, &c.

W. M. GREEN, Superintendant.

Every attention will be paid to the morals and deportment of pupils, and every effort used to advance their improvement.—Terms, Board and Tuition $40 per session, each pupil furnishing a blanket and two towels.

Laurenceville is a healthy situation, with good water, &c. Mrs. T. refers Parents and Guardians to Rev'ds Peacock and Christian, and Mr. Angus Chisholm of this county, and Capt. Caleb Alexander, of Cabarras.

Montgomery county, N. C. Dec. 1. 1825—45—3t

Map of North Carolina.

THIS desirable Work, which has been unavoidably delayed, is now progressing, and will probably be completed in the course of the ensuing winter. Those gentlemen who have been kind enough to undertake the correction of the Maps of their respective counties, and who have not yet found it convenient to do so, are respectfully solicited to give the matter a moment of their attention as soon as may be convenient.

From the specimens of correctness which those Maps that have been received in most instances afford, the public may be assured that a more correct Map of the State will be obtained by the means pursued than by any other that could have been adopted. In many instances entire Maps of the different counties have been made out with great labour, and no doubt with as much accuracy.

To those gentlemen from whom the corrected Maps have been received, the subscriber begs leave to return his grateful acknowledgments.

JOHN MAC RAE.

Fayetteville, Sept. 20, 1825—33tf

North Carolina Telegraph.

THE Editor of the North Carolina Telegraph gives information to all concerned, that he expects the publication of his paper to commence the first week in January next. Those persons holding subscription papers are requested to make returns of Subscribers' names, at the farthest, by the 15th of December. Papers directed to the Post Office in Fayetteville, by private conveyance or by mail, will will be duly attended to.

The Editor would do injustice to his own feelings not to express his warmest gratitude, for the liberal encouragement he has already received. If any thing were wanting to confirm his conviction of the necessity and importance of such a publication, the patronage he has received from all classes of society and from every part of the State would certainly do it.

It is hoped that all who wish to possess the paper from its commencement will immediately send in their names, either by giving them to those who have proposals, or by leaving them with any Post Master who will forward them. The present expectation is, to publish in pamphlet form, containing 16 pages a week, making a volume of 832 pages a year; so that those who take the work from its commencement, may file away for future usefulness a greater mass of religious, political, and literary intelligence than can, perhaps, be collected in any other way, with so little expense.

Ministers of the Gospel throughout the State are requested to make known to their congregations the anticipated commencement of this paper, and to encourage all who wish to subscribe to do it without delay.

It is believed that if those who have already taken a deep interest in this object were respectively to exert their influence a little farther, that a subscription sufficiently large would be obtained to ensure the continuance of a Journal so much needed. Upon this influence the Editor confidently calculates, and promises his best exertions to meet the public expectation.

Fayetteville, Nov. 23—42.

☞ The Editors of the Catawba Journal, Western Carolinian, Hillsborough Recorder, Raleigh Register, Raleigh Star, Milton Gazette, Newbern Sentinel, and Wilmington Recorder, are respectfully requested to publish the above once.
